Coolum Mum at Skysisters

The mum of two has been training all week in order to participate in the Skysister skydiving extravaganza which started today at the Toogoolawah Ramblers Drop Zone.

Skysisters from across Australia and around the world have converged for the all-female skydiving event which will see national and world records challenged and over 5,000 jumps made over the nine days.

Event Organiser, Susie McLachlan says Skysisters 2011 offers a packed program of great activities for the skydivers and impressive visuals for spectators who want to come along and experience the sport for themselves.

"Skysisters is all about a group of girls of all ages getting together to inspire and motivate each other while having a lot of fun and breaking some records along the way," said Susie.

"The event also aims to encourage new people to join the sport and spectators will have the opportunity to book a tandem jump during Skysisters to experience skydiving first hand. I can assure them they won't be disappointed and most people come back for more once they've had their first jump -- it's pretty addictive!"

The girls start the day with a yoga session to loosen up before action packed days of glamour fashion jumps, flag and streamer jumps and daily Lady Bird lingerie jumps.

There are a number of record breaking attempts planned including the World Record for the impressive Wingsuit Flock for which current record is an 8-way set in 2008 and National Records for a Big-way Formation for which the 2005 record is 47 skydivers, and the visually impressive Canopy Formation Stack for which the record is a 5-way from 2007.

The event, which is free and open to the public, has also attracted an impressive list of attendees from within the skydiving fraternity including Kate Cooper-Jensen from California who has completed over 9,500 jumps and holds 14 world records and cinematographer, Norman Kent who is responsible for filming the skydiving scenes in movies like Terminal Velocity, Point Break and Get Smart.

Dates and times of jumps will be weather-dependent but regular updates will be posted on the Skysisters Facebook
